LOS ANGELES-A Pekingese dog of a delicate nature named Lady Esther figured Thursday in a contested divorce

Lady Esther's mistress, Katherine Esther Corckrell, 28, was awarded a divorce-but their pet went to her husband, Clarence Eugene Corckrell, 43.
Mrs. Corckrell claimed in her testimony that violent arguments by the couple in front of Lady Ether led to some concern that she might suffer mental discress.

And Corckrell, who said he was more interested in keep-ing the dog than anything else, told the court he feared the traumatic effect of their arguments on Lady Esther so much that he had her removed to a kennel.

Judge Victor Hayek worried aloud if the dog was schizo-

Into Phase Two

THE MILITARY TAKE-OVER IN Viet Nam has solved the prob-Jem of the one-family domination of the country's government. Domestically the problem involved personal dictatorship, a serious religious schism, and a good deal of the governmental corruption which arises in such circumstances. In Viet Nam's relations with the United States, the problem centred around a dispute as to the best way to wage war against the Commu-Because of differences beween Saigon and Washington, the United States has delayed and reduced the extent of its aid to the country.

But while the coup solved some questions, it has not solved them all, and it may well produce some difficult problems of its own.

At the present time the revolutionary generals control the government, although the latter is more immediately in the hands of a pro-visional civilian council. The administrative civil service of Viet Nam remains relatively undisturbed. The difficulties will arise with the next step, which may be indefinitely

The military junta has expressed Its wish to have democratic elections within six months, but it is evident that much more time may be re quired. One chief drawback is that there is no outstanding civilian, with public appeal and leadership qualities, to take over direction of a government. After so long a reign by one family it is difficult to find a one of the generals to assume the leadership, but this carries serious dangers of its own. The regime of an ambitious general could be equally as unsatisfactory as was the presidency of Ngo Dinh Diem and his dominating brother. And it could be much more unstable, for the history of rule by military powers indicates that rivalry soon leads to challenges from other generals. The net effect may be an overthrow of the government, or the imposition of harsh restrictions on political action. In either case democracy, and the cause of the people, must

The new situation also presents problems for the United States. In the absence of an effective political leader for Viet Nam, the relations of the United States with the government mustabe on a tentative basis. And unless a leaderless administration can rally the country as a whole, support for the anti-Communist conflict must suffer.

The United States has done well to escape charges of complicity in the military coup. As Mr. Alsop pointed out on this page yesterday, American authorities tried until the last hours to obtain agreement to needed reforms from President Diem-reforms which almost surely would have mollified the generals. But "Diem refused to put his house in order." The result was inevitable.

But now there will be other inevitable results if a political vacuum is allowed to remain in the country. Regardless of how long Viet Nam it would be easier, perhaps, for need civilian help much longer.

Adjustable Road-Block

THE 42-HOUR HOLD-UP OF AN American Army convoy on the East German autobahn by Russian armored units was a move nicely calculated by the Soviets to bring forcibly to the attention of the Western Allies that Berlin and the division of Germany remain the paramount problems facing East and West in Europe.

Germany is the one point on the globe where troops, armed and ready, of the two most powerful nations of the world confront one another 24 hours a day. This confrontation is, as several commentators have expressed it, the "flashpoint of war.

Premier Khrushchev himself made this clear Wednesday in conversation with a group of Americans in Moscow when he said that had shooting resulted from the convoy dispute it could have led to total war and "it is possible you and I would not be here today."

Despite the Soviet premier's disclaimer of Russian responsibility for the incident, observers on the scene have confirmed that the American convoy conformed to the regulations as to the number of men allowed to pass checkpoints without leaving their vehicles for a "head count" by Russian border guards.
Since the evidence indicates de-coming on the Berlin autobahn, it is possible that the Russians are about to re-open their campaign for the de facto recognition by the West two Germanys and establishment Berlin as a "free" city. The United States cannot be anxious for resumption of talks with Russia along these lines at the present time, particularly since alarm and suspicion have been aroused in West Germany by growing pressure in the United States for "thinning out" of American troops in Europe. The "experimental" airlifting of a combat division from the United States to Germany, despite White House denials that it signalled any intention of cutting back American forces in Europe, did not improve an already delicate situation.

The Russians, however, have discovered in the past that the easiest way to force the United States to discuss the German problem, willingly or not, is to threaten access to Berlin. Short of actions which could lead to war, the Americans have little choice but to agree

The Russians have now allowed the disputed American convoy to proceed to Berlin. But they have served notice that they will bend their own regulations regarding Western convoy movements when it suits them and thus, since the West is unlikely to escalate a war liberate Soviet provocation, and West is unlikely to escalate a war since Premier Khrushchev has of nerves into a shooting war, more warned that more trouble may be talks on Germany seem inevitable.

A Legendary Benefactor

Canada, and in recent years has been acclaimed by independent analysts among the first 10 daily publications of the world.

That this is so is largely due to the inspiration of the late John Wil-son McConnell, the financier and publisher whose death on Wednesday is mourned across the nation. Mr. McConnell's formula for newspaper success was simple. He believed in printing a large volume of "hard news." He enlisted the best editorial talent available. He looked beyond the boundaries of his own country and opened Star bureaus in the key news capitals of the world.

All this was done in a quiet, al-most anonymous way. Mr. McConnell preferred to be a background figure. He spurned senatorships and honorary degrees. Indeed, when he retired as publisher of The Star 10 years ago, the newspaper was startled to find that it had no biography of him in its files.

His beneficences, quietly given, nevertheless became legendary in his direction.

P.M.'s Problems on Britain's Home Front

Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home's attitudes on foreign policy, On the mestic front Sir Alec is even more of unknown quantity. Granted that he hopped onto Mr. Harold Wilson's let'sget - Britain - moving bandwagon, he has it is too early to comment on his knowedge of them and his capacity for hand-

He has been pilloried for a remark he made in the 1930s, that miners thrown out of work in Wales should go into domestic service in the London area.

An answer to an interviewer's que tion "Would you like to be prime min-ister?" has come back to haunt him from 1862: "The prime minister must have a great deal of knowledge nowadays. Economic knowledge for instance, I have not got that. When I have to read economic documents I have to have a box of matches and start moving them into position to simplify and illustrate the points. sition to simplify and illustrate the points to myself." (I sometimes wish the econ-omists did too," he added in one of ose Homeisms that make him so easily forgiven.)

Since becoming prime minister he has adjusted his answer to claim that he knows enough about economics to handle the subject in the House, and possibly enough "with the help of the chancellos of the Exchequer" to guide policy.

Maudling In Key Spot

The chancellor, Mr. Reginald Maudling, thus has a key position in the new prime minister's inner cabinet circle. He will probably have to produce a budget just before the election is announced, Political necessity demands that it be an expansionist budget. Mr. Maudling can-not afford to lose his role as fiscal custodian of a go-ahead policy, nor can the government afford to have him lose it,

But in the last week or two he has been making cautious noises about the need for stable prices, and about Brit-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

I have not yet noted any defence of, or defence by, Dr. Ralph Adams con-cerning his recent differences with the Minister of Health regarding care of newborn infants. May I, as a member of the medical profession, speaking only for myself, comment on this subject.

I have no special knowledge concerning Dr. Adams' charges, but do have knowledge of the ideal requirements for the management and care of the new-

The first requirement is skilled, careful and conscientious care of the pregnant mother, followed by skilful management of labour and delivery, and the special attention required by the infant in its first few minutes of life. The facilities part of the physician; sometimes due to inadequate facilities and sometimes due to lack of sufficient and well-trained hospital personnel. We have not yet achieved perfection. In fact, as Dr. Adams pointed out very effectively with his figures, we have a great deal of room for improve-ment. This is no disgrace, only a reminder to continuously strive for greater efficiency. This is what he asked.

What is being done? I conscientiously lieve that the medical profession is constantly reappraising itself in an effort to improve standards of care. Hospital medical staffs are always working to de-mand increased qualifications and skill on the part of the physicians eligible to practice in each hospital. Hospital boards and hospital administrators also work to achieve high standards of care. Are they receiving full support from the Government which has virtually taken over financial responsibility? Almost every hospital board in the province says they are being hampered by picayune and un-imaginative policy on the part of the faster rising incomes on the Continent.

This year's 20 per cent rise in public spending, he also warned, was only pos-sible because of spare capacity. After next year's scheduled seven per cent rise, "to try to do more would result only in still no cabinet post in home affairs and overstrain, delay and rapidly rising prices." It was a question of steady growth versus succumbing "once again" (shades of 1958-59!) to the temptation to push ahead too fast and so wreck future prospects. "A sensible incomes policy" was essential to continued growth so that incomes would not rise beyond the rate which the economy could bear, Mr. Maudling did not mention that the unions have no intention of co-operating with any Conservative government on omes policy. Treasury experts are worried especially that an excessive boom may create a heavy labor shortage in the all-important construction industry and drive up wages. All the experts in Whitehall have not been able to find a way to have full

Young and Ambitious

One thing certain: Mr. Maudling is ang and ambitious. He is not going to fall into the old Tory trap of pre-election expansion followed by post-election moves to cut down public demand. The sacrifront-bench domestic affairs arsenal is Mr. Edward Heath, whose name journal-ists will never be able to dissociate from the Common Market. He also is young and ambitious. His chief trait is an incredible ability to master every detail of his subject.

He has plenty of details to master this time. His new title is "Secretary of corresponds to any previous cabinet po-aition, now relinquished by Mr. Frederick Mr. Heath's omnibus ministry. Erroll. (Third of a series)

After all, I did say quite truthfully that

Mr. Heath, and not Sir Alec, has the real work to do in publicly nullifying the need for Labor's trade and industrial development policies.

His responsibilities include improving competitive efficiency of industries, fostering growth in outlying regions and coun-tering industrial drift to the full-employ-London - Midlands area, bringing technical and economic expertise into the family deadwood of industrial management, and modernizing apprenticeship

Narrowed Approaches

A Conservative minister does not have open to him the range of approaches from which a Labor government could choose, Persuasion must be used rather than comlsion, incentives must be created rather than government competition. Government policies on mergers and monopolies must not be flagrantly incompatible with the free enterprise system. But it is evidently to the advantage of the free enterprise entrepeneurs to co-operate with Mr. Heath's expanded Board of Trade if they want to fend off socialist encroachments,

Old Treasury hands have recently been worrying journalists with fears that Mr. Heath's promotion may undermine the treasury's traditional over-all responsibilto cut down public demand. The sacrificial spectre of Mr. Selwyn Lloyd is ever before him.

The other big name in Sir Alec's fiscal responsibility need not be affected.

Mr. Heath's most difficult problem is regional development.

The basic regional problem is that anything the government does must appear to be flying in the face of natural economic tendencies. Industries drift southeast because it is more profitable or convenient for them to do so.

Ironically, the first major report on a state for industry, trade and regional development and president of the Board of due to come out this month just a few Trade." Only the last part of that title weeks after responsibility for that region

Whoopee Statism

By MAURICE WESTERN

THERE are signs in the national capital that 1963 may become memorable as the year of the first steps forward from the welfare to the whoopee state. The new mellifluous mood has since we began to plan tennial celebrations parties there is happy agreement that," a centennial being a Good Thing, we should all demonstrate our patriotism by spending money we haven't got on things we don't need.

One does hear occasional mutterings from neglected back-benchers but the objections do not seem to be fundamental. Let joy be unconfined, the critics say, so long as it is properly spread around and not concentrated in Montreal.

In one sense these niggling criticisms are a tribute to Quebec leaders who, in this field, have undoubtedly been pacesetteys for the nation. It would be unfair to ignore the contributions of other prov-inces; certainly the Ontario project of a 30-foot statue to Canadian nickel has won widespread acclaim.

But such proposals appear timid, nigperhaps even utilitarian, in contrast to the inspired schemes now being showered upon Ottawa by those in the vanguard of Quebec thought.

Park Holiday Deductions

Two examples will illustrate this point, During the recent debate in the House of Commons, Mr. Gilles Gregoire urged the government to offer income tax deductions for expenses incurred by Cana-dians spending their holidays in the na-tional parks, It is true that Mr. Gregoire is a Creditiste whose monetary theories are regarded with some suspicion in parliamentary circles.

But an even bolder proposal has been offered by Mr. Jean Drapeau, the mayor of Montreal, who is so far removed from the debt-free money school that his name has been mentioned from time to time as the possible leader of a Quebec Conservative party.

Mr. Drapeau's thought is that the government should pay half the travel costs of visitors to the 1967 World's Fair. There nothing of narrow nationalism about his proposal. He would make no distinct tion as between Singapore and Sintaluta, Moscow and Manyberries. Let 'em all come. This one, at least to the extent of 50 per cent, is on the house.

One can see in retrospect that the welfare state, despite all that was said in its praise, was a pretty drab affair. Essential to it was the idea that the state should subsidize necessities like housing or provide a basic income to cover things like food and clothing that we cannot do

Tax Non-Essentials

Taxation was based on similar old-fashioned principles. For example, it was considered reprehensible to apply a sales tax to bread or to medicines but entirely proper to impose it on booze. The income tax collectors would spare charitable donations but pounce on personal spending.

The outlines of the whoopee state are still pleasantly vague. This is not the fault of Mr. Gregoire and Mr. Drapeau who, after all, have had little time to develop detailed blueprints. At least the general principles are discernible

The more we spend, the more we shall save and the more the state exempts the more the revenue men will pour into the national treasury. If these ideas fail to generate a new sense of national purpose, nothing will,

It seems peculiarly fitting that we should begin with the World's Fair because the world at the moment looks a better bet than the nation. But it is, or in providing less than maximum hospital of council for our application thus exused to be, the consensus among advanced facilities would hardly be justified. Frank-tends only to January 15 because the ly, as an ordinary citizen, I would like Municipal Act does not enable a longer thinkers that the nation state is on its me reassurance. I would like to hear period for current licences. The licence opportunity to give it a shove may well be renewed for a further six months to July 15 next at the Forget Deficits appropriate time.

The economics of tomorrow have already brought fringe benefits. It seems to have banished from many eager minds that last depressing thought about the budget deficit. It now promises to create a new sense of togetherness between the government and the citizens.

Up to now ministers have felt duty bound to warn us from time to time that we must save more to preserve the state, This cannot have been pleasant for them because the government is not very good at saving although it has no spending peer. Now, in the whoopee state, we can all spend together without any more recriminations knowing that somehow, somewhere, over the rainbowork out for the best. rainbow, everything will been coming out this The gaggle of the teenthere has shifted from who's taking whom to which party, what happened to whose car in the accident the night before and such classic subjects as how the school backfield star was smeared in the last rugby game. Conversation, instead, has centred on themes of apprehension.

Suddenly the youngsters are confronted with sins of omission - study they did not or did inadequately. And an unaccustomed concern has been shown for parental reaction.

It started before distribution of those folded blue cards with the tale-telling first five letters of the alphabet, A, B, C, D and E, with modifications around the C.

"I can feel it," said the young lady who started going to school in nylons last year and is keeping them fairly free of holes this season. "There'll be no more dancing for me for the rest of the term, no more skating, no more swimming. I can hear them saying it: You'd better dig into your studies, dear. Cut down on the play and entertainment until those grades come up."

Then the cards were given to the "Man, oh man," said the moon-faced boy who talks more and says less than anyone else on the bus, "E I get for chemistry. E. else on the bus, "E I get lot. "You'd better Wait'll the old man sees that. "You'd better study more,' he says to me the other night, study more,' he says to me the other hight. I tell him I haven't any books at home. He says, 'Study anyhow.' How do you like that? 'Study anyhow,' and me with no books. How can I study when I left my books at school? That's why I left them."

A little sarcastically a less loquacious acquaintance teils him not to worry too much, he's only doing the same grade for the sec-

"Yeah," he answers, "And I'll be there another thirty" — which gets the laugh he wants from what the psychologists call his peer group

So it goes at the back of the bus. The chatter is incessant from those who proclaim their report cards widely decorated with Ds and Es. "I'm going to tell mother that 'E' stands for effort," says one. "Or maybe not. Maybe I'll just leave home."

By a not so strange coincidence, students with marks running C-plus and better don't seem to parade their results so blatantly. There's an agreeable modesty about them. They worry a little about a C-minus-which seems like high accomplishment to the moon-faced talking boy with an E in chemistry.

An adult, forced to listen because he can't shut out the conversation in his section of the bus, might begin to think that the secondary school generation was an agglom-eration of dough-heads. That would be un-

Under the Greater Victoria system of grading, about five per cent of any given class scores an A in a specific subject, Another 20 per cent scores B, 15 per cent C and 20 per cent C, which is the cut-off mark for average or satisfactory accomplish-ment. C-minus in our scale is a little below par, and represents 15 per cent of a class. The Ds, composed of another 20 per cent, are unsatisfactory students, the Es, five per cent, are poor.

This way of grading conforms to the so called "normal curve of distribution"-which isn't a sure-fire method of assessment, but serves the purpose.

All this seems to mean that the chatter ing youngsters making a bold front of D and E accomplishment in the back-of-the-bus demand for attention represent only one-quarter of all students. The loud talk is ming from the low grade minority.

That may be normal enough, My grandmother used to say that empty tin cans make

Death From Old Age Rare

Back through probably thousands of ars, doctors have felt that certain old peole died a natural death; perhaps because heir bodies seemed just to have become worn out, or seemed to have ended up like the "one-hoss shay." But in the last 100 years, since we have been making autopsies on more and more peowe have found that it s not easy to find a person who appears to have died of simple old age. Occasionally, I have seen an able pathologist look up after having performed an always autopsy and say, "I haven't the remotest idea why this man died." My old friend, Dr. H. E. Robertson of the Mayo Clinic, after an articular anactally, after an autopsy on a woman who for years had suffered from a severe exophthalmic goiter, "I think this woman died a chemical death;

omething went so far wrong with her body know that the poison coming from a highly toxic goiter can seriously injure the heart muscle and also the liver. Doubtless it injures other organs also.

In many cases, when my friend the pathologist would look up and say, "I don't know what this man died of," I would remark, "I wonder what you would have found if you had had permission from the patient's relatives to remove his brain and examine it." Many a man who dies silently during the night has had a stroke, and the big injury to his brain would have been found if the autopsy had been a complete one. Unfortunately, many persons refuse to give the pathologist permission to examine the brain of a relative who has died.

In many cases, at an autopsy on an elderly patient—one who appeared to have died of "old age"—I have been surprised to find a cancer or two, plus perhaps a flare-up of an old tuberculosis of the lungs, which had healed over when the person was young.

piculturalism opened for business Thursday amid indications that it will evolve into a great ublic debate on the future of Confederation itself.

Intense public interest was shown as 45 witnesses with a wide variety of backgrounds gave their views at the commis-sion's first hearing, which lasted 13 hours with time out for meals. The 10 - member commission was sitting all day today to hear about 40 more witnesses.

Thursday's submissions generally fell into three different approaches to the issues under nvestigation:

-English - speaking educationists and representatives of national organizations favored a more extensive use of French in schools and the federal civil service. But they stressed that public opinion outside Quebec will have to be transformed before such re-forms can be introduced effectively.

-French - speaking witnesses argued that national unity will be endangered unless the government and Eng-lish-speaking Canadians recognize that Canada should be an equal partnership of two nations—English and French in culture. They agreed that the same language privileges should not be extended to other groups, since this would create a "tower of Babel" so-

Spokesmen for Indians and Canadians of Ukrainian, Polish and Slovak origins ex-pressed fears that a bicultural state would deprive them of certain language and educa-tion rights and turn them into Witnesses offered a wide ange of suggestions to assist the commission in its massive nquiry:

Scientific research in con junction with universities;

—Public opinion surveys of what Canadians think of each

-Regional forums to stimulate grass-roots interest;

What will happen to the 1,700 franchise holders who invested money in the deal will be settled money in the deal will be settled in the courts, but the fact that Tastee Freez, the "glamor" company of the industry, could go broke should point out a lesson to people in these parts who might be lured by promises of big money through a franchise deal.

Of course there are more good franchise operations than bad ones but, for the most part, the good ones are nearly all taken up except for a few areas. Most of the deals which come along these days are the types which advertise big profits for a very modest investment in time and money and 99 times out of 100 they are sucker bait.

It's impossible to estimate how much money has been lost by people in the Greater Victoria area to slick promoters offering franchises in various types of vending methics. types of vending machine busi-nesses, but it's likely that the few cases that have resulted in court actions are only a fraction of the total where heavy losses have been suffered.

VARIETY

There is great variety fin franchise arrangements but as a general rule the basic plan is that a manufacturer or service company sets an individual up in business selling service company sets an individual up in business selling a product or service under one brand name.

STRETCH OF THE IMAGINATION-Ray Dale, left, and Steve Sage, of Vincennes, Ind., are the developers of these "giraffe" bicycles. Seats are some six feet from the ground. They're as easy to manoeuvre as more conventional two-wheelers. That's what the boys say.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of lable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy, The youngster who asks the first question answered each day re a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second tion a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia to Wesley Kusemka, age 10, of Donora, Pa., for his question:

Which is the largest American waterfowl?

Thus, there was no point in South's three no-trump call. He had the barest minimum of 15 points for his opening no-trump. His partner had only raised to two and South should have passed and hoped to make his eight tricks. East won the heart opening with the ace and returned the suit. Eventually the defence collected four hearts and a spade and South was down one.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

You also have to get up plenty early in the morning if you want to watch some good television. The case in point is "Today" with Hugh Downs, Jack Lescoulie and Pat Fontaine. NBC-TV's newsman Frank Blair also keeps you up to date with world happenings in pictures.

A flood of memories streamed back Wednesday morning at 7 a.m., when old cowboy film star Ken Maynard made a guest appearance. It was one of the most enjoyable and nostalgic hours spent in front of the set. Back in the 30s I and thousands of other youngsters stood in line to watch our favorites like Tom Mix. Buck Jones and Maynard among others

Stephen

It was usually bargain day because it was the era of the depression and 2-for-a-nickel admissions were not rare. It was worth it to watch our heroes ride bravely after the black-sombreroed villians and finish up the hectic chase with a kiss for the horse.

Maynard recalled the days with vivid stories. He told viewers he personally knew such real-life bad men as Cole Younger, Jomes Dalton and Frank James. He spiced the story-telling with photographs. The old cowboy, still handsome but on the paunchy side, made it clear these men were bandits in the early part of this century.

Maynard has a record of some 50 years in show

biz. He was world champion trick rider for three years in the early 20s. Before coming under contract to the Fox Studios in Hollywood he had toured North America and Europe with the Pawnee Bill Show and was a star in the Ringling Bros. Circus and later

In his movie making hey-day he made as much as $500 per week. Maynard also did his own stunt rid-ing in the some 150 movies in which he starred with his horse Tarzan. One movie sequence showed him leaping from one horse onto the back of another unthe rider. Pat Fontaine incredulously re-

"Today" always comes up with an interesting program and Wednesday's was one of the better et-forts because it recalled boyhood days long since gone. In fact if you're a regular "Today" viewer you will have seen this week a full-hour interview with Groucho Marx, a one-hour feature on the "Horror Movie" with Fay Wray, heroine of "King Kong" as a guest and an interview with Paul Gallico discussing his career and new novel "Love, Let Me Not Hunger.'

ONE BIT: Friday, Nov. 15, CBC-TV's "Telescope" will recall the tragic events of September 17, 1949, when fire broke out on the luxury liner Ss, Noronic at Toronto. Script writer and director of the film is Harry Rasky, who covered the event as a young reporter. It should be a must in viewing.

Any 12 people can find a dozen different uses for a Philips tape recorder - so can you

But of their dozen uses, everybody has a favourite.

1. Dr. Rogers uses his Continental '301 chiefly to rehearse the lectures he gives at the university (he never falters).

2. Millicent Andrews likes to tape record the latest hits on her portable Continental '100 (she's a hit at parties) 3. Bob Fisher uses his Continental '200 Mark II to perfect his French and Spanish (he's going completely Continental). 4. George Rathbone uses his Continental '401 to record entire operas (his collection is vast but takes up just one single shelf). 5. Angela Douglas talks her letters home to mother on her Continental '100 (her mother loves her chatty style)

6. Lew Copeland uses his Continental '301 to practise sales talks and delivery (he's slated for upper management soon).

7. Greg McCarthy uses his lightweight Continental 100 to record birdsong (his collection is unique and has been used on television).

8. Mary Phelp uses her Continental '301 to help her teach music to youngsters (they like to fisten to themselves and hear their mistakes). 9. Clem Mann has recorded the sound of his young son from the moment his wife brought him home (Clem Junior's in for a surprise at 21). 10. Roger Fellowes uses his Continental '401 to make sound tracks for his home movies (in stereo too). 11. Gordon Smith just likes having fun with his Continental '200 Mark II (he gets the most extraordinary sound effects with ordinary household noises).

12. Billy Smith slips into father's den and makes his own sounds too (he's got the best Indian war cry on the block).

These are some people's favourite uses for their tape recorders. They use them in many other ways, too. Why not enjoy yourself - at work or play - with a Philips Continental? See them all at your Philips Key Dealer — he is pledged to give you value, quality-service and a full product demonstration. Look him up now in the Yellow Pages.

Cut-Rate Women Taking Jobs Of Male Waiters

WINNIPEG (CP)-A union beverage room waitresses hired at cut rates are putting male waiters out of work.

Harry Duhame, business agent fo the beer waiters union, said he approves of women serving in hotel beverage rooms, but at the same pay as men. He told an interviewer that waitresses are generally paid 80 cents to $1 an hour compared to the union scale of $1.42.

Many of the girls are "moonlighters," holding one job during the day and workjob during the day and work-ing as waitresses at night. Hotels are hiring the girls, he said, to tempt the male customer into the hotel to have a drink. At the same time, the government is spending large sums of money trying to find more jobs for men.

'The female is throwing men out of work because she is an attraction and costs the employer less."
